Our story

Since its inception, EastWave has established itself as a leading player in the Polish commercial construction market. The company's core focus lies in logistics buildings, warehouses, cold storage, pharmaceutical and light manufacturing. It has additional expertise in office buildings, interior construction, and project management.

In the early '90s, as Doswell and Eyring first assessed the Polish market, the country had recently emerged from Soviet influence. Seeing a need, they embarked on a mission to build a modern, class A warehouse facility in Warsaw. At the time, no such facilities were available in Poland and the demand was obvious. The effort led to the construction of a four-building 40,000 m² warehouse park which housed numerous businesses including Johnson & Johnson, Novartis, Phillip Morris, Westinghouse.

In 1996 EastWave emerged as a standalone entity, a partnership between Menard Doswell & Co and Waverly Construction & Management Co., both domiciled in the United States. Since those early days, EastWave has built a wide range of commercial projects for clients such as AstraZeneca, Bayer, Danone, Eurocash Grupa, Fortress Real Estate Investments, GEFCO, GEZE, Hillwood – A Perot Company, LCube – Smart Warehousing, MLP Group, Serioplast, White Star Real Estate and many others.

Today another unique opportunity is developing in Central Europe, one that will likely result from the situation in Ukraine. Poland is a country with an established leadership role in Europe and enjoys a reputation for honest corruption free business dealings. Its proximity to Ukraine coupled with emerging trends in nearshoring have further enhanced Poland's position. Its thriving economy and strategic location as a gateway to both Central and Eastern Europe are important.

As conditions in Ukraine begin to stabilize, the rebuilding process will require skilled and experienced construction talent. Because of its language, location, and culture, Poland is a natural place for that effort to emerge.

For those who see the same opportunity and wish to capitalize quickly on an expanding market that will likely be at the center of regional growth for many years, EastWave offers an immediate platform from which to act.
